Frontline Essential Scrubs LLC is a company that manufactures a scrub brand (FE Scrubs) to be utilized by all individuals within the healthcare field.

This particular scrub line focuses on the importance of providing anti-microbial material to counter bacteria and germs that becomes lodged in clothing while performing numerous job duties. In addition, we are targeting the importance of comfort for various body types by ensuring the material also encompasses a 4 way stretch and moisture wicking fabric.

My wife and I decided to start this company because we both have a combined 45 years of experience wearing scrubs in our respected careers. Upon leaving the Marine Corps I embarked on a career of manufacturing various drug therapies for companies and she is a registered nurse that has managed and enforced policies within various departments of the healthcare field. It was through our conversations, that triggered us to want to be able to provide something that would aid in countering the chances of healthcare professionals transmitting germs back home to their loved ones after they have completed their shifts. They are frontline workers that provide service to others and we understand the need from "first hand" experience and wanted to provide a service to them.
